Want to Reap the Harvest? Cling to the Promise

No one can make you serve God. There are not enough preachers available to deliver the plan of salvation, or Bible study teachers to share the precious word of God. There are not enough programs to be involved in, campaigns to rally behind, or money to buy this precious gospel of Jesus Christ: to make you want to serve God. You must have a desire to make a change, and a willingness to do whatever it takes to be saved.

If I could make you serve God then I would, but it's not the way the Lord works. He desires that you come to him of your own free will. It's like any relationship that you are a part of. Your loved ones want to be cared about even when it's not convenient for you to do so. It's the small things that make such a lasting impact in a person's life. If you neglect the ones you love long enough, it could be disastrous. Spending time together is so important. Respecting each other will reap its own benefits. Caring about the things that your family cares about, even when you don't understand it sometimes, will strengthen your relationship.

When you decide that you want to open up your heart and life to Jesus Christ, if you're tired of playing games with your soul, then, why not let today be a new beginning. We are in a brand new year, and I guess we take it for granted that we have time to serve God, later, but we're not promised tomorrow. Stir up your soul and for once, choose to cling to your promise of salvation, today.

The Pentecostals of Greenville have a brand new year to work in in just a couple of days. We can look forward in 2019, to not only make a difference, but to be different in our attitudes, and zeal to serve Jesus Christ. After years of walking with the Lord, we get too comfortable, keeping things the same. It's time that we throw out those things that are weighing us down and discover the promise of Jesus Christ afresh.

When you make your resolutions for 2019:

Be resolved to serve the Lord with gladness and to come in his presence with thanksgiving.

Be resolved to lift up holy hands and magnify the Lord with your voice, for he is worthy to be praised.

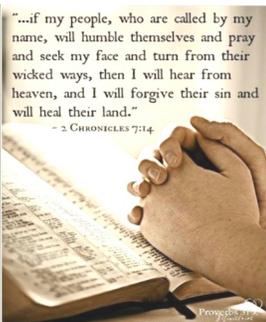

Be resolved to pray for your neighbor, family members, and the strangers that you pass every day. Their lives depend on your prayers.

Be resolved to trust in the Lord with all of your heart and to lean not to your own understanding when things take a turn for the worse.

Be resolved to read the Bible and be filled with his spirit, so that you will be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might.

Be resolved to speak positively and with confidence, because Jesus will do the things that you speak.

Be resolved to know him. God Bless you. -gm

...I just want to share that God healed me of a health issue on Sunday, December 23rd around 11:00 am. during Sunday morning service.
 Betty Moseley

... The church agreed in prayer for a good report about a biopsy that was done to see if a growth on my neck was cancerous. The test results came back and showed NO CANCER.... Donell Richardson

... After the church anointed a prayer shawl, and agreed in prayer for Jill Miller, who was interviewing for a position at Vidant Medical Center, she was offered the position. In addition to being offered the job, she was promoted based on years of service, which means she will have a raise in pay, doing something that she loves to do. Health wise she has completed physical therapy and she has been given a clean bill of health.
